Meet the real estate mavericks reinvigorating the Intown market

By Shandra Hill Smith

With the real estate industry turned upside down in many ways during hits to the housing market in the changing economy, some professionals chose to walk away from the business until it rebounded – if not for good. A group of rising stars has stuck it out in recent years, however, and met some successes along the way. These real estate standouts – each under the age of 35 – remain driven in their daily work to help homeowners achieve what proves to be one of the top goals for many Americans.

Here now, a spotlight on a few of Intown's young guns in real estate:
